

Businesses play major role in cutting landfill waste

Last year, WasteBuster businesses kept an estimated 795 tons of recyclable materials from going into landfills. This does not include the tons of cardboard in cardboard dumpsters or other types of recyclable materials, such as ink cartridges and electronics. These businesses made a commitment to reducing their landfill-bound waste.

The Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government and their partner Bluegrass PRIDE commend these businesses for being leaders in making our community a more "green" environment. We hope their clients and customers will recognize their efforts.

WasteBuster businesses participate by recycling what is collected in the city's residential Rosie program. Super WasteBuster businesses find ways to recycle other materials not collected in the Rosie program. For information on becoming a WasteBuster business, call 3-1-1.
